

Pen Sketch

Hello, I suppose the most relevant facts about myself are that I believe in the sanctity of life; obviously human, but also animal. I don't eat meat and I'm trying to be a good person but it isn't easy being moral, and free from unethical habits. As I say, I'm trying my best.

Not to come across as a boring and worried sort of person, I do a lot of laughing as well. You have to balance out the relentlessly serious nature of life with some jokes. I wouldn't go so far as to say that life is a laughing matter, but when you look at the strange predicament the human race finds itself in, it's a little bit laughable in an endearing way. I do find life endlessly interesting, even when it's at its worst. And when it's at its best I see the beauty in things. Actually when I think about it, there is a kind of beauty in the sad parts of life as well.

Anyway, I sort of see myself as an adventurer, at least in this stage of my life. I haven't yet put down roots or settled in one place, so adventuring makes the rather alarming prospect of establishing myself in the world seem more fun. Even the mundane activities I view as part of the narrative of the life of an adventurer. After all, even Tin Tin had to file for tax returns and queue at the bank.

I have supreme optimism for the future, not just for myself but for the planet as a whole. Things will be OK.
